

NextJS

Next.js is a React framework that enables several extra features, including server-side rendering and static rendering. React is a JavaScript library that is traditionally used to build web applications rendered in the client's browser with JavaScript.

